Colossai

Located in Asia Minor 120 miles east of Ephesus at the foot of Mount Cadmus, Colossai was an ancient city that was positioned strategically along the trade and military routes, on of the six big cities of Phrygia. During the Persian Empire days, Colossai was the place to be! But after Hierapolis and Laodicea were built 200 years before Jesus was born, it became less important.

The Colossians raised sheep and were leaders in wool production and weaving until the city was destroyed by an earthquake. Many of the Colossians move to Heirapolis or Laodicea, leaving Colossai as a small village by A.D. 100.

It is believed that while Paul preached in Ephesus for 2 years (Acts 19:10), Epaphras founded churches at Laodicea and Hierapolis (Col. 1:7-8 and Col. 4:12-13). Philemon lived in Colossai.

Epaphras sent word to Paul while he was in prison in AD 60-61 that a heresy was creeping into the Colossian Church. So Paul sent a letter to the Colossians (and letters to the Church at Ephesus and Philemon) with Tychicus and Onesimus.

The heretical teachers invading the Church at Colossai were teaching that Jesus wasn't God, attacking the deity of Christ. So Paul had to address this. In his letter, he made it clear that Jesus is God, Creator and Redeemer.
